MESSENGER'S NOTICE.
OFFICE OF THE SHERIFF OF PENOBSCOT COUNTY
STATE OF MAINE,
PENOBSCOT, ss: January 6, A. D. 1885.

This is to give notice that on the 30th day of December, A. D. 1884, a warrant in Insolvency was issued out of the Court of Insolvency for said County of Penobscot against the estate of said Joseph H. Weymouth of Newport, in said County of Penobscot, adjudged to be an insolvent debtor, on petition of said debtor, which petition was filed on the thirtieth day of December, A. D. 1884, to which last named date interest on claims is to be computed; That the payment of any debts to or by said debtor, and the delivery and transfer of any property by him are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of said debtor, to prove their debts and choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Insolvency to be holden at Bangor, in said County on the 19th day of January, A. D. 1885, at ten o'clock in the forenoon.

Given under my hand the date first above written,

EDGAR L. DOW, Deputy Sheriff,
As Messenger of the Court of Insolvency for said County of Penobscot.

HOSTETTER'S

BITTERS

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the article for you if faint, restless, flagging energies, invigorates the body and cheers the mind. It enables the system to throw off the debilitating effects of undue fatigue, gives new vigor to the organs of digestion, arouses the liver when inactive, renews the jaded appetite, and encourages healthful repose. Its ingredients are safe, and its credentials, which consist in the hearty endorsement of persons of every class of society, are most convincing.

A HARD PAN-SY BLOSSOM.

The cry is "Trade is dull," as Julius Caesar,
Scarcely enough to [illegible] an Ebenezer,
Where is the lady fair to let you please her?

Why don't some people now pay what they owe?
Is form ungrateful dealers overthrow us?
Is what we ask the wiser heads to show us.

All business dull, with plenty at your call,
Drive no disheartened debtor to the wall—
A soul of honor bright is best of all.

Help is the watchword, in a time like this,—
Impatient action from our thoughts dismiss,
If we would win in Heaven rewards of bliss.

STATE NEWS.

Cumberland.

The Chinese class in the Second Parish Sunday school, Portland, entertained their teachers and invited guests to the number of seventy at the vestry of the church. Supper was served and Chin Hung, a Chinese vocalist, entertained the company. The class numbers sixteen.

Edward G. Broughton, who wandered from the Portland almshouse over to Cape Elizabeth on a fearfully cold night a short time ago and froze both feet, died Tuesday. His feet were not amputated, but he never rallied from the results of that terrible exposure to the piercing cold.

William Dorman, aged fifteen, and Chas. Dorman, two years older, are supposed to be the thieves who broke into Davis' gun store in Portland, a short time ago, and secured a number of revolvers and a quantity of cartridges. They have been traced to Boston by detectives from Portland.

Thomas Haskell, an aged citizen of New Gloucester, had a paralytic shock Wednesday night. The left side is paralyzed. He is quite comfortable at the present time. He converses quite freely with his friends, but his recovery is very doubtful.

Hancock.

Considerable excitement was created in Bluehill, last week, by reports that Paris Cushing had ill-treated an orphan boy about ten years old, whom he had taken from an asylum in Boston, last November. At last Tom Alby made complaint to H. A. Tripp, a trial justice, who issued a warrant for assault and battery, and soon Cushing was in the custody of the law. The town hall was soon well-filled, and the trial was short. The justice found the prisoner guilty, gave him some wholesome advice, and fined him $10 and costs, which were $9 78. There was no woman in the house at all, and when Cushing went into the woods, the little boy would be left alone all day, with thirteen head of cattle to care for and no company at all.

Kennebec.

Willie Reynolds, a Sidney boy of fourteen years, has invented an instrument consisting of two uprights placed in a base of wood. To these are attached two bells by a strap. These he operates with one foot, while on the opposite knee he thrums a banjo. For a mouth piece he has a harmonica. All these he plays at one time and, it is said, can perfectly render almost any known melody, including dancing selections of great variety. Young Reynolds never received any instruction in music.

Somerset.

A barn owned and occupied by Truman Nottage, of Industry, was burned, Jan. 8, together with a quantity of hay, five head of cattle, eighteen sheep and some farming tools. Mr. Nottage went to the barn as usual, the evening before, and leaving things all right had retired for the night, and when awakened by the noise of the burning building, the flames had gained such headway that it was impossible to save anything, and it was with the utmost vigilance that the house and stable near by were saved. There was no insurance on the building and the cause of the fire is unknown.

Waldo.

Israel Woodbury, of Belfast, aged seventy-two years, committed suicide by cutting his throat, Thursday. Four weeks ago he dreamed he should kill himself in that way, and the memory of the dream worried him. It is supposed that by dwelling upon the dream he deranged his mind.

Washington.

Eddie, son of Joseph McPheters, of Alexander, is afflicted with a singular disease. He was stricken down suddenly, deprived of sense and motion and don't take any notice of persons or things; remaining in this state for several days at a time, and will gradually recover, become quite smart and relapse suddenly as before.

The White House Conservatories.

WONDERFUL HOUSES FILLED WITH THE RARE PLANTS OF EVERY CLIME.

[Baltimore American.]

An interesting feature of the entertainments at the White House, this winter will be the newly arranged conservatories. They have always attracted a great deal of attention, but they have been so much improved during the summer months that they are now far more attractive than ever before. The doorways from the White House corridor and State dining-room open into the beautiful palm house, where amid coral rockery and graceful grottoes, tall palms of many rare varieties are arranged in the most artistic manner, and present a very attractive picture. From this apartment the conservatory, with its cooler and tropical wings, is reached. These abound with rare and wonderful plants. The tropical end is perhaps especially interesting and instructive, many of the specimens being the only ones of their kind in this country. From this apartment the visitor descends to the camellia, fern and primrose house, radiant and brilliant with color, and delicious in perfume. From it one passes into the rose houses and the propagating house, and is soon among frames filled with pansies and violets. The rose house is perhaps the most beautiful of all. Thousands of plants are blooming here. They are robbed twice a day of their half-blown beauties.

The flower beds of the White House grounds contain altogether over 100 varieties of roses during the season, and will have a much larger assortment next year. Only about a dozen varieties, and these the most familiar and popular, are preserved during the winter in the rose house. Hundreds of jacqueminots mingle their royal crimson with the most delicate teas and whites. The Marechal Niel is represented by hundreds of beautiful specimens, as are also the Mary Van Hoot, Cornelia Cook, Catherine Mermet, nephitos, bon-silene and pearl de jardin. The grapery is another attractive sight, although not entirely successful in vintages. The gnarled vines of the black Hamburg and muscatine have made their way over the walls and ceiling, forming a rustic canopy, and freely flowering plants lend their brightness of color. One of the most interesting features of the collection is the assortment of aerial and terrestrial orchids. Nearly 100 varieties of these wonders of the plant world are successfully cultivated, some of them so rare as to attract the interests of botanists and scientists throughout the country.

"Not the most beautiful, or the most wonderful, but the most striking and odd of these plants are the "nuns plants" and the "holy ghost" flower. The former in each blossom presents a perfect miniature of a nun's head, surrounded by the conventional white bonnet, showing the features of the face with startling fidelity to nature, and embracing neck and shoulders in the tiny floral representation. In the inner recess of the "holy ghost" flower, amid the petals of the snowy cup, a tiny dove may be discovered, its wings spread, its head lowered, its feet pending just as though the little visitor had just alighted to drink the dew-drop sparkling in the flower's cup. Others of the orchids find their striking feature in their resemblance to butterflies and creeping things. Others possess interest and claim admiration on account of their gorgeous colors, their curious designs and their strange formation. Guests at the White House entertainments are privileged to wander at will among the conservatories, but they are apt to encounter some watchful person at every corner, who has been placed there to keep an eye on the fingers of the visitors.

Spouting Oil Wells in Russia.

BIG FLOWS OF CRUDE PETROLEUM—STRENGTH OF THE GUSHERS.

[Popular Science Monthly.]

The principal oil wells of the Baku district lie at Balaxany or Bulakhani, about six miles to the northeast of the town; this is an oil field about three and a half miles in length by one and a half breadth. To the south lies a smaller field called Bebebat. One fountain at Bulakhani, ninety-eight feet in depth, is noted as having been flowing steadily for upward of two years, and still continuing to yield 800 barrels a day. Another well, not far off, 400 feet deep, commenced its career by throwing up a jet thirty feet in the air, and then flooding the land with oil for a considerable distance all around, overflowing other wells and several small refineries, so as to effectually stop their work. The roar of the rushing oil and gas could be heard a mile from the spot.

Various flowing wells are said to yield 6,000 barrels a day, and some far more; but, from the fact that these quantities are generally stated in the Russian method of poods, it is not very easy to realize what is meant. One pood, we learn, is equal to thirty-six pounds English. Hence 1,000 poods represents somewhere about sixteen tons. Accounts have just reached England of an oil fountain which was struck last December, and flows at the rate of from 59,000 to 60,000 poods daily, gushing forth with such force as to break in pieces a three-inch cast-iron plate which had been fastened over the well in order to divert the flow in a particular direction. In the same district a huge heap of sand marks the spot where an oil spring, on being tapped, straightway threw up a column of petroleum to twice the height and size of Great Geyser in Iceland, forming a huge black fountain 200 feet in height—a fountain, however, due solely to the removal of the pressure on the confined gas, for there is no trace of volcanic heat. The fountain was visible for many miles around, and on the first day it poured forth about 2,000,000 gallons, equal to 50,000 barrels.

An enterprising photographer who was on the spot secured a photograph which places this matter beyond cavil. The fountain continued to play for five months, gradually decreasing week by week, till it finally ceased to play, leaving its unfortunate owners, an Armenian company, well nigh ruined by the claims brought against them by neighbors whose lands were destroyed by the flood of oil.

Life With the Mercury Fifty-six Below Zero.

[Rochester (Minn.) Letter.]

This morning the thermometers registered 56° below zero! the air was heavy with frost and the smoke was falling to the ground in a dense cloud. One peculiarity of our climate is its extreme dryness in winter. On account of this a person will freeze and be almost unconscious of it. You will think, perhaps, that we must have suffered intensely upon exposing ourselves to the air this morning, but I have just been conversing with a gentleman who, in company with his wife, rode a distance of fifteen miles, and who said he never rode more comfortably in winter. The amount of oxygen in the air was very noticeable. A person could not have exercised very much without becoming exhausted. All complained of feeling tired after walking a few blocks. At this time of writing the thermometer stands at 2° below zero, a difference of 54° in twelve hours.

The Whirling Spheres of Ivory.

HOW BILLIARD BALLS ARE MADE AND WHAT THEY COST.

A true set of balls is just as necessary for the game of billiards as are the table and cue. An immense number are turned out in New York. The ivory is imported from Asia and Africa in tusk form. The principal points of exportation are Zanzibar and West Cape. Ivory is steadily rising in price. As the elephant takes great pleasure in sticking his tusk into the earth and uses it almost exclusively for rooting purposes the original color soon gives place to a darkish brown. The natural color is preserved in the manufacture of certain articles, but is necessarily dispensed with in the manufacture of billiard balls. The tusk is sawed into blocks and then put into a lathe. Not more than a sixteenth of an inch is lost in turning the balls, and from every "block" are procured two rings which are used either for martingale rings or, for the purpose of preserving peace in the family by providing the baby with something to chew upon.

Billiard balls are divided into three qualities, "all clear," "half clear," and "season checks." The first quality is entirely free from enamel, which forms the bark or outer covering. This enamel has just as much gluten and elasticity in it as clear ivory and does not interfere with the efficiency of the ball but merely shows a flaw in appearance. In a set of "half clear" balls, the two white balls are free from enamel, but from the colored balls the enamel has not been removed. The balls are colored with aniline dyes. "Season checks" are balls which have become cracked or "checked" in seasoning. The blocks after being roughed are allowed to season for six months. During this period many of them become cracked. The cracks are not of consequence so far as use is concerned unless they are large. Ivory is extremely sensitive to weather changes and balls often crack while exposed in show cases. During the present month a salesman held an "all clear" ball in his hand while talking to a customer. The opening of the front door allowed a gust of cold air to enter. It brushed past the ball, which showed its sensitiveness by cracking almost in two pieces. If balls are kept in even temperature and carefully oiled occasionally they will last in use for years. A good set of balls has been known to last in a billiard room for six years. In other cases, a set has been worn out of shape and become badly cracked in six weeks.

All attempts to provide an artificial substitute for ivory have failed so far as billiard balls are concerned. The best quality of celluloid seems to lack the requisite elasticity. In appearance there is no comparison between ivory and celluloid. The latter shows no grain and is of a dirty white. In the manufacture of fancy articles some success has been met with in imitating the grain of ivory in a material called zylonite. It has not been used for billiard balls. Probably a hundred different compositions have been tried, but all have failed to produce a billiard ball equal to that made of ivory. For pool balls celluloid is found to answer reasonably well. The same elasticity is not required in pool balls, and as most of them are colored the difference between celluloid and ivory is not so marked. The price also is a factor in the case. A set of ivory pool balls costs $70, while a celluloid set can be purchased for $35. Few "all clear" pool sets are made except "to order." A set of "all clear" billiard balls costs $24; "half clear," $22; and "season checks," from $15 to $20. The above prices are for standard sizes, 2⅜ inches. A set of "composition" balls can be procured for $12.50. The largest size billiard ball kept in stock is 2½ inches. South America sometimes calls for three-inch balls.

During the last few years there has been a marked increase in the manufacture and sale of billiard tables, and consequently of all material that pertains to the game. The old prejudice that existed against the game has worn itself out, and it is the exception rather than the rule now to find a rich man's residence without a billiard room.

FRIDAY, JAN. 16, 1885.

The New York Senatorship question now excites much interest. The friends of Mr Evarts claim that he is gaining ground all the time.

The Illinois Democrats do not seem much pleased with their temporary Speaker and are trying to oust him, but he shows a disposition to stick.

Mr St John continues to call every one a liar who questions his sincerity in the campaign, but that is hardly a convincing argument.

Hancock having declined to act as marshal for the Inauguration on account of his son's death, [illegible] has been extended to Gen McClellan.

The attempt of some Democrats to cause dissension among the Republicans of [illegible] the reelection of [illegible] has resulted [illegible].

[illegible] the bill to [illegible] the retired list [illegible] Only four Democrats [illegible] the bill in the Senate.

[illegible]

[illegible] Morrison [illegible] to prove [illegible] the State for Governor [illegible] feeling existing between the Democratic [illegible] candidate in that State.

[illegible]

[illegible] Butterworth [illegible]

The Massachusetts Republican State Central Committee will organize for 1885 Saturday. The [illegible] says [illegible]

[illegible] Democratic [illegible] Mr Cleveland's [illegible]

[illegible]

The [illegible] occasionally [illegible] in Ohio but [illegible] the investigation is not proving very satisfactory to the men who instigated it. In this connection the Boston Traveller says: "The Springer investigating committee continues the manufacture of Democratic thunder. So far Democratic witnesses concede that they know of no Democrats that were prevented from voting by deputy marshals. The Democratic police lieutenant who is serving out a sentence for illegally locking up colored voters on election day, was one of the witnesses. Another Democratic policeman, called as a witness by Congressman Springer, admitted that he had served out a term in the penitentiary for participating in election frauds some years ago. Mr Springer undertook to champion this witness, charging that Judge Foraker asked him insulting questions but finally sat down as suddenly as he had sprung up, admitting his error." If the [illegible] is anxious to denounce political corruption it should turn its attention to the great Democratic fraud in Chicago to which as yet it has devoted very little space.

The Irish-American Republican Association, of Albany, has issued an address detailing its reasons for supporting Mr Blaine in preference to Cleveland, and announcing its determination to act with the Republican party in the future. It makes the tariff issue paramount.

The Princess Beatrice, now betrothed, is in her twenty-eighth year; the Princess Royal married in her eighteenth year, the Prince of Wales in his twenty-second year, the Princess Alice in her twentieth year, the Duke of Edinburgh in his thirtieth year, the Princess Helena in her twentieth year, the Princess Louise in her twenty-first year, the Duke of Connaught in his twenty-ninth year, the Duke of Albany in his thirtieth year. The united ages at marriage of the five Royal Princesses makes 111 years; the united ages of the four Princes makes 111 years.

The bill to pay [illegible] for spoliations committed by France upon American commerce prior to the year 1801, having passed both branches of Congress, now awaits the signature of the President. This bill does not provide for the payment [illegible] but is probably the entering wedge that will eventually lead to their settlement. A Washington special says: The original amount claimed by the United States in 1795 was twenty millions of dollars. Subsequently France paid for fifty-two vessels [illegible] By the convention of 1803 $3,750,000 [illegible] under the treaty with Spain in [illegible] The State Department has carefully preserved lists of all the persons who have alleged losses on account of the capture of vessels or their detention in French ports by embargo, of the [illegible] of cargoes or insurance, together with the names of the ports, the names of vessels, etc. The list of vessels contains 2,201 names, while the list of persons directly or indirectly interested contains 2,270 names. [illegible] 347 in which they have not. The aggregate [illegible] more than $7,000,000.

Schuyler Colfax

Ex-Vice President Colfax who dropped dead at Mankato, Minn., was born in New York City, March 23, 1823. He had but few years of education in the common schools previous to entering the store of his stepfather, Mr Matthews, but he employed them to [illegible] advantage and acquired a reputation as a [illegible] student. In 1836 Mr Matthews emigrated to New Carlisle, St. Joseph County, Ind., then a wilderness. There he began [illegible] Colfax [illegible] Books were few [illegible] His stepfather was kindly [illegible] encouraging him in the indulgence of his natural bent toward mental culture. Mr Matthews became an important man in the community, and when, in 1841, he was elected auditor of St. Joseph County, he removed to South Bend and took his step-son with him to be his deputy. Mr Colfax [illegible] the duties of his office [illegible] learned the trade of printing [illegible]

When he was 21 years old, Mr Colfax had acquired money enough to found the St. Joseph Valley Register, a weekly paper, which soon reached a considerable circulation for those days [illegible] of the Whig party. The Whig leaders of Indiana found him a valuable aid, and in 1848 they sent him as a delegate to the National Convention which nominated Taylor and Fillmore, in which he filled the office of secretary. He was a member of the Indiana Constitutional Convention of 1850, where his anti-slavery views were manifested in his opposition to that clause of the Constitution which forbade the settlement of free colored men in the State. He was a delegate to the Whig National Convention of 1852, and officiated as its secretary. The year previous he was the Whig candidate for Congress in his district, [illegible] Democratic majority.

The disintegration of the Whig organization threw him into the Republican party, [illegible] He relinquished all idea of [illegible] and with his newspaper and on the hustings fought the pro-slavery [illegible] In 1854 he accepted the Republican nomination for Congress, [illegible] by a majority [illegible] He was but [illegible] years old when he took his seat in the House of Representatives. He stumped [illegible] in 1856, and his services were also in request at Republican meetings in other States. He was reelected to Congress term after term, and in 1863 was chosen Speaker of the House of Representatives. [illegible] of the Republican majority which was [illegible] with the administration of Mr Lincoln. Presiding over the House in those years of turbulence and bitter feeling, he was a strong and effective, but courteous and popular Speaker.

In 1868 Mr Colfax was nominated for the Vice Presidency by the Republican Convention. During his term as Vice President the Credit Mobilier scandal [illegible] He was alleged to have been implicated in the alleged bribery of Congressmen by Oakes Ames to vote privileges to the company that constructed the Union Pacific Railroad. The report of the Judiciary Committee, made February 21, 1873, declared that there was no ground for the impeachment of Mr Colfax, since, if the offence had been committed by him, it was before he became Vice President. At the National Convention of 1872 he was defeated by Henry Wilson, who received 364 votes on the first and only ballot, to 321 for Mr Colfax and the scattering.

About this time Mr Colfax came to a determination to retire from public life. His decision was quickened by a severe illness, which began with an attack of vertigo while he was presiding over a session of the Senate. Excessive labor and mental tension, his physicians said, were the causes of his illness, and they counselled him to take rest. Always a temperate man in other respects, he had been an inveterate smoker, frequently using fifteen to twenty cigars daily. They forbade him this indulgence on account of his nervous condition, and he abandoned it entirely.

Relinquishing public employment, Mr Colfax turned to travels and lectures as his occupations. Annually from 1874 to the time of his death he made lecture tours during the Winter, while his Summers were taken up with leisure and reading in his home at South Bend. Always a well-informed man, he became in his later years a man of profound and varied knowledge. Twice since his retirement he was solicited to accept a congressional nomination from his old constituents, but his decision to remain in private life remained inflexible. His services upon the rostrum were in great request, and he was in every sense a popular lecturer. His "Personal Recollections of Abraham Lincoln" was more, however, than an entertaining lecture; it was a most intelligent and valuable contribution to the history of the war epoch, for his relations with Mr. Lincoln were of an exceedingly intimate nature. About 1870 he married a niece of Senator Ben Wade who survives him.

Whatever may have been his faults and weaknesses, and whatever may be the final judgment as to his connection with the Credit Mobilier transactions, Mr Colfax's services in the House of Representatives, both on the floor and in the responsible position of Speaker, during the dark days of the war of the rebellion, and the trying period of reconstruction, should ever be remembered with gratitude by his countrymen.

FROM HALIFAX.

Meeting to Urge Reciprocity with the United States.

HALIFAX, Jan 15.—A meeting of those interested in fisheries, to consider the question of reciprocity with the United States, was held at Barrington Passage yesterday. The meeting was attended by a large number of the leading residents of the township. A resolution was passed requesting the Dominion Government to take immediate steps to secure a reciprocity treaty between the United States and Canada upon terms mutually advantageous, and in the event not being entertained by the Washington Government, that the revenues of Canada be pledged and the assistance of England be asked to protect resident fishermen within the three-mile limit and to prevent any infringement of these privileges by fishermen sailing under the American flag.

Forty Eighth Congress—Second Session.

Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan 15. Mr. Hale, of the Committee on Naval Affairs, reported favorably a bill for the relief of sufferers by the wreck of the U. S. steamer Tallapoosa, placed on the calendar

Mr. Miller, of California, introduced a bill to increase the pension of Mrs. Frances B. Thomas, widow of Gen. George H Thomas from $360, to $2,000 a year, the same as the pension already granted the widow of Admiral Farragut

Mr Miller, of California, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported a substitute for the bill heretofore introduced which has been intended to give the President general authority to accept invitations to the International exhibitions. The substitute simply authorizes the President to accept an invitation to the Belgian International exhibition, and to send to Antwerp the Government exhibits now at New Orleans when the New Orleans exhibition shall have been closed The matter went over and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bills. The bill for the relief of the First National Bank, of Newton, Mass, was taken up and discussed until two o'clock without reaching action upon motion of Mr. Miller the Senate went into executive session

When the doors reopened the Senate adjourned

House

The House, under a special order, proceeded to the consideration of the McPherson funding bill Mr Henley, of California, wished to antagonize it with a question of consideration but the Speaker ruled that such a question could not be raised against the special order, and Mr Henley gave notice that he would Saturday press the Northern Pacific land grant bill for action

Mr Wilkins, of Ohio, gave a brief statement of the features of the McPherson bill and the causes which [illegible] the passage of some such measure The simple provision of the bill was to increase the circulation of the national bank notes from 90 per cent of bonds deposited to secure such circulation to 100 per cent

Mr [illegible], of Michigan opposed the measure Every man who claimed to be a Democrat should oppose this bill, and [illegible] for private [illegible] He maintained that [illegible] matter of good faith no member who was a stockholder in any national bank should speak or vote on this [illegible] He gave notice of an amendment excluding from the provisions of the bill any bank which refused to receive standard silver dollars on deposit or pay over the counter in the same terms as gold

Mr Cook, of Iowa, in opposing the bill, attributed the present business depression to the uncertain condition of our currency. The currency was too elastic It should be fixed and should maintain every element in strength

Mr Brumm of Pennsylvania, thought the measure should be entitled "A bill to offer a premium to the present bondholders [illegible] to perpetuate the National debt."

Mr. Henderson of Iowa, supported the bill, the sole purpose of which was to increase the amount of money [illegible] in the hands of the people He found his duty clear to vote for the bill, which was in the interest of the people and not in the interest of the banks

Mr Eamentrout, of Pennsylvania, [illegible] Democrat would take the Chicago platform as their guide on this question they must favor the pending measure

Mr Potter, of New York, opposed the bill He entertained the opinion that instead of strengthening the credit of the country it would be the first step which would inevitably overthrow the system of banking in this country

Mr Potter gave notice of a motion to recommit the bill with instructions to report back a bill providing that the Secretary of the Treasury shall be authorized to receive at the Treasury any bonds of the United States bearing interest at 4 per cent, or 4½ per cent., per annum, and to issue in exchange therefor an equal amount of registered bonds of the United States bearing interest at 2½ per cent. per annum Said 2½ per cent. bonds to be issued in exchange for four per cent. bonds, shall be payable at the pleasure of the United States after the first day of July, 1907. Said 2½ per cent bonds to be issued in exchange for 4½ per cent. bonds shall be payable at the pleasure of the United States after the first day of September 1891

Mr Wilkins demanded the previous question on the amendment pending which, Mr Mills, of Texas, moved that the House adjourn stating that the Democrats wished to hold a caucus The motion was [illegible] [illegible], nays 112

While this was in no sense a test vote on the McPherson bill, many members voting affirmative in order that the caucus might be held it operates as a virtual defeat of the measure, as the special order is not a continuing order

Mr Tucker, Chairman of the Banking Committee, said to the Associated Press reporter, "That settles the bill. We will never again be able to get it before the House."

Pending the announcement of the vote on the motion of Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania the House non-concurred in the Senate amendments to the Six Months' Naval Appropriation bill and Messrs. Randall, Holman and Long were appointed conferees.

Damage to a New Haven Schooner

NEW LONDON, Conn., Jan. 15. Schooner C C Lane, of New Haven, Capt. Merrihugh has arrived in [illegible] Harbor in a disabled condition. The Lane finished loading coal at Baltimore, last week and proceeded for Portland, Me., with fair weather until last Monday when between Block Island and Gay Head a sudden squall struck the schooner and carried away the fore-gaff, tearing the sail. The main top-mast snapped off carrying the rigging with it and making a hole in the deck. The sails were torn considerably and the rigging badly injured so much so that it was impossible to work the vessel except in fair weather. Since the accident Capt Merrihugh has been endeavoring to make this port under many disadvantages, and attended with much danger. The damages are estimated at $600 and will be repaired here

THE SHAW BROTHERS' AFFAIRS.

A Further Effort for a Compromise.

BOSTON, Jan. 15. The effort to compromise the affairs of Shaw Bros was renewed to-day before Judge Devens of the Supreme Court. There were no new facts presented, but several interesting legal propositions were discussed by eminent counsel to avoid the difficulties suggested by Judge Field against allowing Mr. Wyman the trustee appointed by the Supreme Court, to sell the property for $300,000, and deposit the same with the Judge of the Insolvency Court of Middlesex County, to carry out the scheme under the composition law of 1884, by paying 30 per cent. to the creditors. What course should be pursued as to the objecting creditors who refuse to join in the compromise was the main point discussed, and the opposing creditors argued legal objection to the proposition that their pro rata share should be deposited with the clerk of the Supreme Court. The judge reserved his decision.

An Old Banking House Succumbs—Failure of John J. Cisco & Son

NEW YORK, Jan 15. John J. Cisco & Son, bankers, 59 Wall street, filed an assignment this afternoon, without preference to Lewis May, and Mr. May, when asked for a statement in regard to their suspension, said: "Rumors which started ten days since about this house and which were telegraphed all over the country and to Europe, have caused every severe run on them. The firm has no outstanding contracts except exchange."

Mr. May said the firm owed $3,000,000 to depositors. He could not say who were the largest depositors. There is no estimate of their number. It is generally believed that the matter is more in the nature of liquidation than of failure. His view is strengthened by the knowledge that the firm has always been rich and also by the fact that no preferences are given. The firm's liabilities are chiefly to depositors. The present partners are John A. Cisco, son of John J. Cisco, and F. A. Foote, the former being a member of the Stock Exchange, but never participating in the operations of the Exchange. The late John J. Cisco was formerly assistant Treasurer of the United States at New York, and during the early stages of the rebellion rendered valuable assistance to Salmon P. Chase, then Secretary of the Treasury in securing loans from the city banks.

[illegible] Foote partner in the banking house of John J Cisco & Son, was [illegible] to-night at his residence. "There is nothing discreditable in the action of our firm," said Mr Foote. "Rumors of the last ten days, which have been spread broadcast throughout this country and Europe, [illegible] to our firm, have used [illegible] up. No house could stand under the same circumstances. If Mr Huntington had not defaulted on the Houston and Texas Central coupons, January 1st, we would have been all right."

The Dead Lock in the Senate

SACRAMENTO CITY, Jan 15 The deadlock in the Senate continues A resolution was offered yesterday that the candidate for President pro tem receiving the smallest number of votes after three ineffectual ballots be dropped, and the candidate receiving the highest number be declared elected, was defeated. It is believed the Republicans will join hands with one or the other of the Democratic factions and bring the deadlock to a close and thus effect an organization of the Senate The continued fight for the organization has given the various Senatorial candidates an opportunity to test their relative strength and the result is dissatisfactory to all Many things [illegible] indicate that the Senatorship will [illegible] be tendered to Governor Stanford.

RAILROAD NEWS

The Strike on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad.

CHICAGO, Jan 15 The embargo put upon the freight trade of the Pittsburg Fort Wayne & Chicago railway by reason of the strike of freight brakemen and conductors is felt seriously here. None but passenger trains are leaving the city, and the employes about the freight depots are out of work. "The strike is no small matter," said a prominent official of the Pennsylvania road. "Here in Chicago all our thorough northwest freight trade will fall off greatly when it is understood that freight is not being forwarded except on other roads." He expressed the view that a settlement of the present difficulties will be reached shortly

FORT WAYNE, Jan 15. The status of the strike is unchanged. No effort has been made to move freight trains out of Fort Wayne since yesterday and no freight trains have arrived from Chicago or Crest [illegible] the yards at Fort Wayne are already blocked. The railroad officials [illegible] to demand of the city authorities protection of their property and maintain that the city will have to assume the responsibility for all losses arising from the failure of the city authorities to protect the train men in their efforts to move the trains.

Up to a late hour to-night the situation as regards the striking railroad brakemen in this city remains unchanged. The strikers hold all points [illegible] of the Pittsburg and Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroads, they keep patrol on a switching engine from Lastyard to Grand Rapids junction, a distance of two miles west, in order to head off any movement of officials towards starting trains. The firemen will join the brakemen to-day.

A Train Jumps the Track and Plunges into a Creek—Heroism and Self-possession of the Engineer and Brakeman Prevent Loss of Life.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan 15. The Buffalo fast express train from New York on the Lehigh Valley Railroad jumped the track at Stony Creek, near White Haven today. The accident was caused by a misplaced switch. Fireman Evans seeing danger ahead jumped and was instantly killed. When the danger was discovered a brakeman ran through the train directing the passengers to hurry into the rear car. This being done quickly the car was detached, the brakes being put down. About 70 passengers were on the train, many jumped from the cars and sustained slight bruises and cuts, but none was seriously injured. Hardly had the rear car been cut loose when the engine and three coaches ran from the track down a twenty foot embankment into Stony Creek. Engineer Kitch was found at the throttle of the engine in a fainting condition. He was slightly bruised. Had he not remained at his post the accident would have been more serious.

CECILIA CLUB CONCERT. The Cecilia Club are to occupy City Hall two successive evenings on the occasion of their next concert. The first evening, Monday Jan 25 will be given the public rehearsal to which the members of the club will invite their friends. The second evening will be given the concert proper which the honorary members of the club will attend. The reason for this arrangement is that the club has not sufficient funds to engage a hall large enough to accommodate all those who wish to attend on one evening. It is to be regretted that such is the case and that our music loving citizens do not give the club more encouragement.

INSTALLATION. The following officers of "Queen City Council," No. 20, United Fellowship, were installed at the last meeting of the Council, to serve for the next term ending June 30th, 1885. NOROMBEGA RINK. There was a very large audience at Norombega Rink, last evening, at the fancy dress party. About fifty skaters were on the floor, and some of the costumes were very beautiful and others unique and amusing. The galleries of the hall were completely filled with spectators, the company being composed of some of our best people, together with quite a large number from out of the city. All of the skaters were pleased with the great improvement made by the removal of the stage. During the evening a very good exhibition of fancy skating was given by Master Henry Charlton of this city. The party was a complete success and very enjoyable. The rink is as well patronized as ever.

HYMENEAL. A very pleasant wedding ceremony took place last evening at the residence of Mr Fred C. Morrill, on State street. The happy couple were his accomplished daughter, Miss Lizzie F. Morrill, recently teacher of one of our city schools and Mr Arthur Bassett of Worcester, Mass. Among the presents on the occasion were a magnificent silver pitcher, gold lined, a gift to the bride from some members of the Order of United Friends, and various other handsome gifts from members of the Worcester and Norwich Railroad Company, with which Mr Bass[ett] is connected. The happy couple left by the evening train for their home in Worcester, carrying with them the best wishes of a wide circle of friends.

FROM KENDUSKEAG. Our correspondent writes: Tuesday evening, the 13th, some seventy five members and invited guests of Rock Lodge, No. 214, I. O. G. T. assembled at the Lodge rooms and between seven and eight o'clock partook of a nicely gotten up oyster supper. After the supper the company spent a very pleasant social time. Such gatherings can but benefit the promoters.—A singing school under the instruction of Mr. A. W. Prime of Brewer is being largely patronized two nights in each week for the next ensuing seven weeks.—The young man Leslie Darling who accidentally shot himself in [illegible] last week, submitted to the amputation of his left leg above the knee, on Monday, the 12th inst. He was alive when last heard from, but his condition is not hopeful.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH ENTERTAINMENT. A large and appreciative audience gathered in the Universalist vestry last evening, and after a bountiful supper had been served the following programme was rendered: Duett piano and organ, Mr and Mrs E. S. Davenport, reading, Miss Rosalie Blanchard; song, Miss Mamie Staples; solo, Mr J. H. Haynes, reading, Miss Rosalie Blanchard, solo, Miss Carrie Hodgdon, song Mr J. H. Haynes. Miss Blanchard fairly captivated the audience with her readings. Scarcely ever have we heard Will Carleton's "First Settler's Story" read with more expression and true pathos. In her humorous selections she showed excellent taste and thorough cultivation. The solo by Miss Mamie Staples was one of the finest parts of the whole entertainment. She has a fine voice and the audience appreciated her selection. The solos by Miss Carrie Hodgdon and Mr. J. H. Haynes were up to the usual high standard of excellence attained by these singers. Both are too well known to Bangor people to need further mention

BODWELL WATER POWER COMPANY. The annual meeting of the Bodwell Water Company was held at the Kenduskeag National Bank in this city Wednesday. The company re-elected the old board of directors as follows: J. R. Bodwell, Hallowell; Joseph L. Smith, Oldtown; Wm. B. Hayford, Charles Hamlin and Charles V. Lord, Bangor; President, J. R. Bodwell, Secretary, A. W. Butler, Treasurer, J. A. Blanchard; Superintendent, J. W. Bodwell. The company are to ask for some amendments to the charter granted them at the last session of the Legislature, but that legislation will not interfere with the rights of any private individual but will conform with the law as lately interpreted by Chief Justice Peters. They are also to build a dam and make extensive improvements on their water power as soon as the business of the country improves so much as to warrant it. Hon J. R. Bodwell, President, has conferred with capitalists who think favorably of erecting a pulp and paper mill to utilize some of the surplus water power of the company. Various improvements have been made on their mill property during the past year and a dividend of two per cent has been declared. The company will continue to improve their property during the coming year.

Decision in Law

The following decision in law has been received by Charles F. Sweet, Esq., Clerk of Courts.

PENOBSCOT CASE

Henry C. Snow vs The Penobscot River Ice Company.

Rescript.

A requested instruction must be wholly correct and the evidence must warrant the jury in finding such facts as to make the requested instruction applicable to the case.

The evidence does not prove that the commissions sued for are claimed as a consideration for awarding a contract to the defendant in preference to others.

The plaintiff was authorized to purchase ice for his principal, and to receive from the vendor a stated commission of 5 per cent for his services, and this was to be paid by whoever sold the ice, so that it could not operate as an inducement to award the contract to one vendor in preference to another. The requested instruction therefore is not called for by the evidence

The defendant acted with a full knowledge of the plaintiff's agency and of its terms, and really advanced the commissions to the plaintiff for the convenience of the purchaser of the ice and plaintiff, the same having been fixed and agreed to by all parties interested [illegible] hand. There was no fraud or concealment and the plaintiff cannot fairly be said to demand commissions from the vendor except from his agreement to pay the same on account of the purchaser whose agent the plaintiff was

Upon other points in the case the instructions were plenary and are not excepted to

The verdict cannot be considered to be so against the evidence or its weight, as to require the court to set it aside

Motion and Exceptions overruled.

ROYAL ARCANUM.

A Pleasant Entertainment Given by Bangor Council Last Evening

Bangor Council No 123, Royal Arcanum, gave a delightful entertainment at their hall last evening. A company of about one hundred were present and the occasion was one of the most enjoyable that has occurred here for a long time. The exercises began with the installation of officers. Deputy Supreme Regent, C. L. Dakin, was the installing officer, assisted by [illegible] as acting Supreme Guide. The following are the officers: Chas. F. Whitney, Regent, [illegible] Hall, Vice-Regent, Chas. F. Collector [illegible] Secretary, [illegible] Collector, H. C. Quimby, Treasurer, W. P. Dickey, Chaplain, Stephen Allen, Guide, [illegible] Hall, Warden, [illegible] Roberts, Past Regent

After the installation the entertainment began and the following were the selections rendered:

A Run For Life.

A prisoner had escaped from Dartmoor Prison. During a dense fog, which had suddenly enveloped a working convict-gang, one of them—a man notorious for being perhaps the most desperate character amongst the many desperate ones there—had contrived to escape, and, for the present at all events, had eluded capture.

It was not a particularly pleasant piece of news for us to hear, considering that we had, attracted by a very tempting advertisement, taken a small house for the summer months not very far distant from the famous prison itself. We were tired of seaside places; it seemed as if we should enjoy a change from our everyday life in London more, if we were in some quiet secluded spot, far from uncompromising landladies, crowds of over-dressed people, and bands of music. Every day we scanned the papers, with a view to discovering something to suit us, and our patience was at last rewarded by coming across the following advertisement, to which I promptly replied:

"To be let for the summer months, a charming cottage, beautifully situated on the borders of Dartmoor, containing ample accommodation for a small family, with every convenience; a good garden and tennis-lawn, also the use of a pony and trap, if required; and some choice poultry, etc., to a careful tenant, most moderate. Apply to A. B., Post-office, &c."

The answer to my inquiries arrived in due time; and everything seemed so thoroughly satisfactory, that I advised my husband to settle upon taking the place for three months, without a personal inspection of it previously. The terms were two pounds ten shillings a week, and that was to include the use of the pony, trap, and poultry, and several other advantages set forth in the advertisement. The only drawback—rather a serious one—was that Mr. Challicombe, to whom the place belonged, had informed me that it was [illegible] miles from a station. However, with the pony-trap always at hand, even that did not seem an insuperable objection. He expatiated upon the beauty of the scenery; the perfect air from the heather-clad moors, and lastly, requested an early answer from us, as several other applicants for the Cottage were already in the field.

[illegible] we agreed to take it; and one scorching day in July, our party—consisting of two maid servants, my husband, myself, and our only olive branch, a most precious little maiden of [illegible] years old—started from Paddington station en route for Exeter, where we were to branch off for our final destination, Morleigh Cottage. The pony-trap was to meet us; and Mr. Challicombe had promised that we should find everything as comfortable as he could possibly arrange, and as sundry hampers had preceded us, I had no fears as to settling in easily as soon as we should arrive.

The journey to Exeter by an express train was by no means tedious; we rather enjoyed it. As our branch train slowly steamed into the wayside station, we seemed to be the only passengers who had to alight, and presently we found ourselves, with the exception of a solitary porter, the sole occupants of the platform. At one end of it lay a goodly pile of our luggage, which the said porter had in a very leisurely manner extracted from the van.

The pony-trap was to meet us, and as Mr. Challicombe had assured us it would not only hold four grown-up people and a child, but a fair amount of impedimenta, we were under no anxiety as to how we were to reach Morleigh Cottage.

"Is there anything here for us?" my husband inquired of the porter.

"No, sir; not that I knows of."

"From Morleigh Cottage?" Jack asked.

"No, sir," he repeated. "But chance it come yet."

"Chance, indeed!" I echoed in a low voice. "It will be too disgraceful, Jack, if Mr. Challicombe has forgotten to desire the carriage to be sent."

We both proceeded to the other side of the station, and gazed through the fast-falling twilight up a narrow road, down which the porter informed us the pony-trap was sure to come, if it was coming at all—which did not seem probable, after a weary half-hour's hopeless waiting for it.

In the meanwhile, we beguiled the time by asking the porter some leading questions with regard to the surroundings, etc., of Morleigh Cottage; all of which he answered with a broad grin on his sunburnt, healthy face.

"How far is the Cottage from here?" I inquired.

"More than six miles."

"Six miles!" I exclaimed.—"Oh, Jack, Mr. Challicombe said it was about three."

"It's a good step more than that," observed the porter, with a decided nod of his head.

"Is it a very pretty place?" I said interrogatively.

"I can't say, for them as likes it," was his guarded and somewhat depressing reply.

My spirits sank to zero. I had persuaded Jack to take it; he had suggested that we go to see it first; but the advertisement had been so tempting, and the [illegible] of the other longing applicants had made me so keen to secure it, that I felt [illegible] it was like, I must make the best of it, and contrive that Jack at least should not repent of having been beguiled by me into, as he expressed it, taking "a pig in a poke."

"The pony-carriage is sure to come," I said in a confident way, once more straining my eyes up the deserted road. As I uttered the word "pony-carriage" I detected a distinct grin for the second time on the man's face, which was presently fully accounted for by the appearance of our equipage coming jolting down the deeply rutted road. Imagine a tax-cart of the oldest, dirtiest description, with hard boards for seats, and the bottom strewn with straw, the pony, an aged specimen, rumbling along, with a harness in which loose pieces of rope predominated. It was a pony-trap, with a vengeance.

I could almost have cried when it drew up, and I saw Jack's critical eye running over all its shortcomings. And it was all my fault.

It was too late to recede from our bargain now; all that we could do was to pile into the horrible machine, and endure as well as we could an hour's martyrdom driving to Morleigh Cottage.

Our groom was a civil boy of about fifteen, clad in ordinary working clothes, who managed to sit on the shaft or somewhere, and to drive us back, as Jack of course had no idea of the direction, and, judging from the solitariness of the scene, we should not have been wise to depend upon chance passers-by to direct us.

Arrived at last, we found the Cottage just two shades better than the trap. It was a tiny abode, as desolately situated as it was possible to conceive; the only redeeming point about it being that it was clean.

The next morning, which happened to be a very wet, misty one, we surveyed our garden and domain generally. The tennis-lawn was spacious enough, and the garden, to do Mr. Challicombe justice, was well stocked; but the place itself was like the [illegible] of the dead—so silent, so quiet, so lonely.

But as the weather improved, we got out most of the day, which rendered us very independent of the small, low-roofed rooms. Jack and I took long walks, and occasionally we utilized the pony-trap, taking with us our little Rose and her nurse.

We began to think soon of asking some of our relations to visit us, and the first to whom I sent an invitation was an elderly cousin, who resided in London, and who was in rather delicate health. I candidly explained the out-of-the-way nature of the place we were in, but descanted upon the great pleasure it would be to have her, and my entire conviction that the air would do her an immense amount of good.

She came; and it was very fortunate for me that she did so, as about three days after, a telegram had reached us requesting my husband to lose no time in returning to town, in consequence of one of his partners being taken ill.

It was raining when he left us; and I watched the wretched shandrydan disappear down the road with feelings I could scarcely repress—a sense of foreboding still seemed to oppress me. I tried in vain to shake it off, but only partly succeeded in doing so. Cousin Susan endeavored to console me by reminding me constantly that Jack had promised to return in a day or two.

Jack had just been gone for one week when, Rose's nurse, a pleasant girl of about twenty, came to my room and informed me of the occurrence I have already alluded to—"A prisoner had escaped!"

CATARRH

The Great Balsamic Distillation of Witch Hazel, [illegible]

[illegible]

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.
